APPLICATION FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECTS
Winter Break 2011

Students from the California State University, Chico College of Engineering, Computer Science and Construction Management and a Board of Community Advisors, invites community organizations to submit community service projects for consideration.

Background

California State University, Chico students have established a Winter Break tradition of giving. Students spend months organizing and preparing for a week of service to community during the last week of Winter Break leading into their Spring Semester. Winter Break community service projects in 2006, 2007 and 2008 were dedicated to the clearing of debris and rebuilding of homes in New Orleans in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Students raised approximately $100,000 and sent 117 students during 2008's pilgrimage. In 2009, student's brought New Orleans home to Chico and responded to the needs of the fire survivors in the community of Concow devastated by firestorms during the Summer of 2008. Catalyst Blitz Build 2010 galvanized the Chico community as students constructed two transitional houses for victims of domestic violence in nine days. Students are seeking a community project for their 2011 Winter Break Project.

Guidelines

1. Eligible not-for-profit organizations are those classified as charitable, educational or cultural.
2. The primary student resource is skilled and unskilled student labor supervised by faculty.
3. Funding for tools, equipment, materials and project supportive services can be included in the applicant's project request. Fund raising requirements for project needs may be a deterrent to project selection depending on the magnitude of requested funding.
4. All requests will be considered.
5. Applicants must complete the attached CSU Chico ECC Application for Community Service Projects form. Be clear and specific in the application. Incomplete or vague applications will generate questions, which will only delay a decision.
6. E-mail the completed form to dshirah@csuchico.edu.
7. Applications will be accepted through May 14, 2010.
8. Winter Break 2011 project selection will be made on or before June 4, 2010.
